AMERICA'S EPITAPH

"We The People"

by Ben Williams

AMERICA is dead. I'm not referring to the entity called "The United States." I mean this land where pioneers once flourished.

She has been conquered and killed. Her killer is The US Government. It has ruled and ruined this land. It also rules and ruins other nations of the Earth as well.

The America that once was – the America we like to think about – is dead. She was systematically killed by The Beast System ... aided by mindless patriots and bureaucrats.

Programmed patriots claim that the US Government was once good ... and that the Founding Fathers were Christians. They say it was once a republic (which they claim is good), but is being overtaken by another system ... one that is not good.

But this is not true. The government today is the same Beast originally created by the Constitution. The Beast has grown up, gained power, and become bigger ... but it is still the same creature the "founders" created in that secret conclave in Philadelphia, 1787.

Like a harlot, the "Republic" (AKA US Government) disguises itself behind makeup and masks (lies, patriotic rhetoric, and legal jargon). The "Republic" was created by lawyers, bankers, and politicians. It deceitfully took power over America and declared war upon the Kingship of Christ.

The "Republic" is a political business: a criminal war machine designed for conquering and profiting. The "Republic" claims credit for the good in America, and disavows the bad ... but the bankers and politicians who run it know it isn't true. It serves them only.

America The Beautiful has become "America The Hated." Freedom and opportunity have all but disappeared! The Republic (government) has killed her with its Roman government system and its corrupt political process.

The average American doesn't even think about it. The "Constitutionalists" think about it, but they can't see it. They are handicapped by the programming they've consumed. Their Constitution, which they credit for liberty, actually destroys liberty. Their definition of "the real America" is simply an illusion. They ignorantly, and proudly, claim the title "We The People," thus epitomizing the problem that keeps America in slavery to the bankers, politicians and lawyers. Misplaced patriotism is "the opiate" that keeps Americans supporting the Beast System and preventing them from asking the right questions.

Political scientists have it all figured out. The political art of conquering and controlling people has been perfected by the Beast System here on this continent. It was "The Grand Experiment" and they called it "The New World Order" ("Novus Ordo Seclorum"). Patriots gullibly take pride in this, and pledge their allegiance to its flag.

THE POISON

The America we loved is dead. It has been dead longer than we like to admit. We should have noticed. She died from the poison of political process administered by bankers, politicians, and lawyers who did not love her. They only loved profit and power. The poison that killed her is "the political process." This "process" was designed to drug her and control her, and now it has killed her. Those who identify with "We The People" support and defend this process. They call it "liberty." But it isn't liberty. It is the way of theft, slavery and death.

America's illness came in her youth – in the 18th century, before she even began to mature. The slow poison began to be administered in Philadelphia in 1787, and the eastern states were soon sick. Then as the Eastern Establishment crept westward it carried the sickness everywhere it went. Most Americans have been turned into unwitting accomplices to the crime. They have assisted in the poisoning of America. How? By condescending to the poisonous political process of the Republic. The political process is the Republic's method of drugging and capturing America. The drug is injected into the main arteries through state and local arteries.

Early pioneers in America had God-given principles which served them well. Most of them believed in a Savior who saved them when they got lost and forgot how to follow their Creator. The Beast System, at that time, was 3,000 miles east ... across the Atlantic. Its absence in America prevented the establishment of tyranny.

THE SERPENT

Our forefathers invited the serpent into our American Eden. The bankers' tentacles reached across the Atlantic and into New England. The serpent system beguiled the new Americans to adopt a government patterned after the one that was sold to Adam in Eden – later set up in Persia, Rome and Europe ... with a few alterations. With the new government men could "be as gods, knowing good and evil" ... only now they wouldn't call themselves "kings." So in 1787, in this land, men shelved Christian law and took up man's (Rome's) laws. Up to this time the local governments in America had not the power to fully enslave the people. In 1787 that changed. Freedom began dying.

Soon, America's vigor was waning. However, there were still locations in the west where the dreams of freedom could be realized. But most of the people took freedom for granted.

Eventually, America was a battered wife. People fondly speak of America and freedom, and hope. They speak of her in song and poetry. But, where it really counts they ignore her and pay homage and support to the Beast that abused her like a harlot. The original America (before the Roman system conquered her) is taken for granted, and "We The People" continue to cover up for her killers.

The liberty that pioneers found here has been lost. The dying process began in the eastern states because that was where the Beast (the Republic) rooted itself first. As liberty was chased from the eastern states, pioneers followed it into the expansive wilderness of the wide-open west.

Oppression had taken root in the east as the government grew. As commercial enterprise grew it attracted the bankers and politicians. Parasitic bankers and politicians require concentrated populations (cities, etc.) in which to feed and breed.

So pioneers began escaping westward to distance themselves from the parasites, and to find freedom again.

In the scarce population of the west the spores of Roman Centralism (the Republic) had no host. Freedom in the west existed, not due to a system, but due to the absence of the system. Freedom was there because the parasitic Republic was not.

The freedom in the west was used (at least as long as it lasted) as a symbol of liberty for the whole country. That spirit of freedom came to be called "The American Dream." But that spirit – that America – has sickened and died.

The Republic (the political process) moved west as towns and politicians followed the people and money. It has been bleeding us white ever since. This is the beast system in action.

America is dead, and we need to examine this phenomenon. What gave America life? What killed her? What can we do now?

THE DREAM

America sans the Beast System was as marvel in the eyes of the pioneers. It lasted for a few generations. That liberty under God was the America that people loved. That America was not made in Philadelphia or Washington D.C.. Rather, it was the natural result of living separate from the Beast System ... with only God's laws to govern the land and the people.

America was a beautiful jewel. A pristine Eden. In contrast, the Republic was a political scheme, with bankers, investors, political predators, hired courts, hired armies, criminal money system, its own banks, and power – lots and lots of mind-boggling POWER. It was instituted in Philadelphia and took root in Washington D.C.. It was conceived by criminals in high office. It was built upon political lies and occult agendas inherited from Rome and Babylon.

The Republic wasn't popular at first among the pioneers of the 1700's. It wasn't readily accepted, but it had an agenda. It required more than a generation to infect the minds of the people. It survived its early years by deceit and stealth. It took the appearance of a lamb, but it still spoke as the old European dragon (Rev. 13). It went largely unnoticed because the pioneers were busy providing their daily bread. They didn't keep an eye on its subtle, wily ways. The Republic cunningly strengthened itself. It was sinister, and smart ... as a serpent.

America was tricked into nurturing the young Beast, like an unwitting mother hen sitting on viper eggs. As society flourished, people became tolerant of the young Republic. The plotters exploited this tolerance by keeping the Republic in a somewhat passive posture, not exposing its hand. Misplaced confidence and political platitudes were encouraged. Songs and poems were composed to help shape its image.

Meanwhile, in the West, America continued to provide room and hope to pioneers. Though only a phenomenon of the time and circumstance, it nonetheless sustained the pioneers through the formative years. All the while, the Republic was building its machinery, cunningly waiting like a deadly serpent coiling around its prey; waiting for the right time to squeeze and assert its powers.

People began assuming that "America" and "The Republic" were one and the same. This suited the Beast's agenda. Its powers were being amassed stealthily, legally, and with an ambition heretofore unimagined. It would be the New Order of The Ages; the Grand Experiment; the culmination of centuries of trial and error. This was carefully orchestrated to be the magnum opus of political science; the serpent's finest hour; the horrible fulfillment of the visions of Daniel and John who saw the mighty Beast in prophecy. This beast had no peers, and would conquer the people of the Earth.

Indeed, there seems to be no equal in all of history to the political machinery of the Republic. From Rome to America, the system has lived up to the expectation of its creators. It enslaved and conquered most of the nations on Earth. And American dupes have reveled in its development – like slaves who stupidly take pride in their slave master. A pledge of allegiance was administered to all children in schools, at public meetings, and at baseball games. The image of the Beast was being perfected.

America had been cunningly used as a surrogate mother hen to nurture the serpent system hatched in her nest. Bankers, lawyers and politicians tricked her into adopting the serpent system. "We The People" were conned into supporting it.

Now the serpent has come of age and grown into a huge beast. It is still cowardly, but because of its overwhelming size and power it no longer fears exposure, and has openly declared itself sovereign. It no longer hides behind the wizard's curtain.

Looking back over the years, and realizing how things got the way they are today, it is not hard to follow the pattern. Who is to blame? The list is long. All who contributed to America's death share in the blame ... and in the judgment that is falling. "We The People" – those folks who stubbornly support the Republic and its infamous charter, the Constitution – are on that list.

WHAT GAVE HER LIFE?

In the early years America was a phenomenon of freedom. American freedom existed because of the absence of the Beast System. Men could live and work here without being undermined and plotted against by the Beast System. America's vigor was the natural result of not having to bow to a criminal government. The Atlantic Ocean was a natural barrier insulating her from that Beast. That wonderful insulation started to be eroded in the 18th century as bankers and politicians from The Old World (England and Europe) invaded the New World (America).

Pioneers from the Old World had already come here to seek freedom in the New World. And as their numbers grew here, and as cities and ports were established, the Beast System virus began finding warm political bodies to infect. Bankers found sources of wealth to exploit and steal.

WHAT KILLED HER?

The Beast System with its political process spreads contagion from continent to continent via international merchants (“merchants of the earth” – Rev. 18:3). The process can be compared to an infectious disease. The merchants are the carriers.

International merchants seek bodies of population as hosts ... the way diseases seek living bodies as hosts.

International merchants (bankers) seek political bodies (cities, states, etc.) and lure them into adulterous relationships via contracts and constitutions. Cities, states, etc., become infected with the disease of the Beast System when they play the harlot and accept the system. If any political body resists the merchants’ advances, they are threatened with war and forced to cooperate. The process is more like rape than courtship. Nonetheless, it masquerades as lawful ... via contracts, covenants, and constitutions. The parasitic disease (the beast system) spreads to its new host, infecting and eventually killing it.

16. And she (Jerusalem) lusted after them (Babylonian merchants and politicians) with her eyes, and sent messengers to them into Chaldea.

17. And the sons of Babylon came to her, to the bed of love; and they defiled her with their fornications. And she was defiled with them, and her soul was alienated from them (she lost their favor).

18. And she uncovered her fornications and uncovered her nakedness. Then My (Yahweh’s) soul was alienated from her, just as my soul was alienated from her sister (Samaria).

19. And she multiplied her fornications to recall the days of her youth, in which she had whored in the land of Egypt.

Ezekiel 23:16-19

WHAT CAN WE DO TO SAVE AMERICA?

America’s chance at life depends upon one simple equation. That equation is the same today as it was in the 1700’s. It is still the same as it was when the children of Israel were led from Egypt to Canaan, and when Yahweh placed Adam in the Garden. For America to live, the serpent must go. The presence of the Beast System is death for America.

America must be raised and reborn. When Americans stop patronizing the Babylonian harlot and quit accepting the political process of the Beast System (i.e., the Republic), the poisonous ties with the Beast will sever and America can recover. When the Beast’s support group (i.e., “We The People” and the Constitutionals) stop looking to the U.S. Constitution for their salvation, and start recognizing God’s word (the Bible), freedom will revive.

4. And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that you do not share in her sins, and that you do not receive of her plagues.

Rev. 18:4

THE ARGUMENT

Someone may argue, “But America’s greatness was the result of the concepts of government established by our “Founding Fathers.”

WRONG!

America’s greatness was a claim to liberty as witnessed by the pioneer spirit flourishing in a pristine environment – before the “Founding Fathers” and their Republic infested her. Freedom in America decreased in proportion to the growth of the New World Order (“The Roman Republic).

Others may argue: “But the original government was a good Constitutional Republic, whereas our present government system is no longer a Republic and has turned bad. The oppression began only after politicians began ignoring the Constitution.”

This is an argument I hear often. But I must remind those who make this argument that whether or not you think today’s government is constitutional, it is nonetheless the product of that charter that created it, and of the power that the charter conferred upon it. What it is today is the result of its birth. It began a beast – a young beast – but a beast nonetheless. And it is a beast today. It was smaller in its infancy. So what? Most beasts are. But when they grow up ... watch out.

Even if it were true that the Republic started out good (which it didn’t) and that the U.S. Government was good at its outset (which it wasn’t) but is now changed and is no longer abiding by the Constitution, that still would not change the fact that the Constitution gave birth to the Beast and conferred powers upon it that are forbidden to man. The Constitution created two lethal enemies of freedom: the Republic, and “We The People” (voters).

Why should anyone have been surprised when the Beast became dangerous? That’s the nature of Serpents.

Jeremiah 51 tells us to not try to save that which should not be saved. Stop being patriots of Babylon.

6. Flee out of the midst of Babylon; yea, each man deliver his soul. Do not be silenced in her iniquity, for it is the time of Yahweh’s vengeance; He will give to her a just reward.

7. Babylon (like the U.S.A.) was a golden cup in the hand of Yahweh, making all the land drunk. The nations have drunk of her wine; therefore the nations are mad.

Like Babylon, the U.S. has been driving the nations mad. This is a rhetorical scolding, a chiding for Israel’s confused and misguided efforts to cling to her Babylonian ways.

9a. We would have healed Babylon, but she is not healed.

Patriotic Israelites tried to save Babylon because they thought she was great. Patriots today try to heal the U.S. Republic because they think there is greatness in it. It was wrong then, and it is wrong now. Israel was told to forsake her. We ought to do the same.

9b. Forsake her, and let us go each one into our own country; for her judgment reaches to the heavens and is lifted up to the skies.

God’s judgment is upon America because she loves the Beast System.

THE CASE AGAINST THE CONSTITUTION & “WE THE PEOPLE”

Much has been written exposing the fraud of the U.S. Constitution. Perhaps the best exposé is Lysander Spooner’s NO TREASON: THE CONSTITUTION OF NO AUTHORITY. We can only begin to touch upon the subject here. But consider a few obvious contradictions. I have pointed these out before, in past writings:

1. The first words of the preamble of the Constitution are, “We The People.” It sets the tone for the rest.

This phrase was coined in secret by the elite few who drafted and signed the Constitution in Philadelphia in 1787. The meeting was held in secret, and yet the document claims to speak for “We The People.” “We The People” had no hand whatever in its creation since they were not there, nor were they consulted. At no time did “We The People” ever see or sign the document, or have opportunity to accept or reject it. What right did the signers have to say “We The People”? And what kind of madness could compel citizens to now take responsibility for it?

Those few of that generation who actually signed that document are the only ones to which it could apply. It couldn’t lawfully compel later generations without their assent. Can a few men lawfully contract the future lives of an entire nation and their descendants, compelling them to accept a contract? I think not.

Nonetheless, Americans tend to ignorantly assumed the title “We The People” as if they were responsible for it. They gullibly assume a contract and a debt they do not owe.

Americans have stupidly joined the politicians in claiming the power to create law, to create government, and to be gods.

Remember, whoever, or whatever, makes your law is your god. To discover the god of any society, just ask who makes their law. In America, Congress makes law. Therefore Congress is America’s god. Patriots claim, by extension, that “We The People” are masters of the government. This theory is nonsense for it is not only over simplified; it doesn’t even consider the corrupt nature of the election and political processes. Nonetheless, even if the claim were true, it still leaves Americans (“We The People”) as their own lawmakers. This usurps God’s role in society, replacing Him with voters.

2. The Constitution created and empowered a government that exercises all the powers of the beasts of Bible prophecy ... including “the great fiery serpent” (Rev. 12:3) which makes war with “the man child” (Christ’s Reign). The Constitution created the Beast that today is at war with Christ and his Kingship.

3. The Constitution conferred upon the government power to create and enforce law – a power rightly reserved to God alone (Is. 33:22). Furthermore, it certified that any laws passed by the U.S. Government, including all contracts, covenants, treaties, etc., including all those entered into internationally, are “the supreme laws of the land,” and all courts of the land are required to enforce them no matter what the constitutions and laws of any state or county may say (Art. 6).

4. The Constitution conferred upon the US Government power to tax its citizens and thus fund and perpetuate its wars, its tyranny, and its power (Art. 1, Sec. 8).

5. The Constitution conferred upon the US Government power to borrow unlimited money on the credit of “the people” (Art. 1, Sec. 8). The government has unlimited funding at its disposal. Plus there is no mechanism of enforcement to make government pay back what it has borrowed.

6. The Constitution conferred upon the US Government the power to define, create, and regulate the currency (Art. 1, Sec. 8). This power alone is enough to conquer any nation and enslave its people.

“Permit me to issue and control the money of a nation and I care not who makes its laws,”

—Mayer Amschel Rothschild, 1790

7. The Constitution conferred upon the US Government the power to create and fund a standing army to protect itself (not the people) from all threats foreign or domestic (Art. 1, Sec. 8). This gave that government war powers to force its will upon the American people, and insure its own survival ... right or wrong.

8. The Constitution conferred upon the US Government the power to appoint for itself a Supreme Court to judge its lawmaking. That court, and its members, are appointed and funded by the supposed object of its judgment (Congress). This is an obvious conflict of interest. The idea of government policing itself is laughable, as we well know.

9. Lastly, consider the Constitution’s prime argument for the necessity of a Federal Government – namely, that men possess not the ability to rule themselves. Constitutionalists claim it would be “Anarchy” for men to rule themselves. Thus, they expect us to believe that man, individually and privately, cannot be trusted to order his own life, and therefore requires a government to do it for him. The theory suggests that 535 of these same Americans who, individually cannot be trusted to order their own lives can, as an organized group, be trusted to order the lives of an entire nation.

How does that work? If one sinner cannot be trusted to run one life, how can 535 of these sinners, organized in a body of conspirators, be trusted to run the lives of millions?

This is the government that the Constitution created. Still like it? Would God have inspired such a document as this? Would God have inspired men to create a centralized law-making government in opposition to His own laws?

Together, the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial branches form a triumvirate of Serpent Power that has no equal in history. What has been passed off to the public as “a system of checks and balances” is in truth a conspiracy of a bunch of super-rich psychopaths ganged up to rape the world.

Think about it. What kind of government is that? Who in his right mind would sanction the creation of such a government again?

Consider the modern-day “patriot”; today’s consummate “Constitutionalist.” Would he sign on to an agreement to create a new government with such powers? Would he agree to empower a new central government if these were the conditions to which he must agree? The new government must have: 1. power to tax, 2. power to issue, define, and regulate all currency, 3. power to unlimited credit with no payback, 4. exclusive power to create and enforce law, 5. power to insure that its law is supreme in all the land notwithstanding other bodies of lawmakers or other laws already in place, and 6. power to hire and fund militaries to defend itself?

Would any thoughtful American agree to such a plan? No! He'd run the other way. However, I know of "patriots" who jealously defend the Constitution that did exactly that two centuries ago. Go figure!!

At some point Patriotism seems to become a drug; an opiate. It starts altering the way minds work. Pursuit of power replaces ethics. Obeying authority becomes license to commit unthinkable abuses.

Even if we give patriots the benefit of the doubt, the Constitution is still man-created; it still gives powers to man that should be reserved for God only; and it still creates the Beast and allows it to run rampant. Once created, government has no boundaries. Jefferson's "chains of the Constitution" really don't exist. Government cannot be controlled at any level – even at the county level, much less at state and federal levels. Once the Beast is empowered it becomes a power unto itself.

When Constitutionals attempt to use the Constitution to fight the government they are "tilting at windmills."

Where might America be today if it hadn't been for the Constitution and its Republic; if it hadn't undermined and abused America at every juncture? Her potential would have been limitless. Our song of freedom would still be ringing through the land.

The corporate entity known as The United States of America was created by the Constitution. It is a monument – an idol erected to the concept that men can be gods. For Christians it is an object of infamy, not pride.

ECCLESIA: THE ONLY VIABLE OPTION

The Beast System is made up of two elements: Government and Religion. We call them "church" and "state."

Church and State were teamed together as a political force to conquer and rule. The combination of Church and State (man's government) has been applied in a number of ways and forms in many nations down through history. But, whatever format is used – Monarchy, Republic, etc. – it is the combination itself (i.e., Church and State) that has proven to be the most effective kind of Beast System for conquering and raping lands and people.

The world empires of history – Babylon, Egypt, Rome, etc. – were all formed around Church and State. The same is true with The United States, including individual state governments. Thus we conclude that most, if not all, centralized government systems have always used the format of Babylon (Temple and Legislature; Priest and Despot; Preacher and Politician; Pew and Voting Booth) to subjugate lands and people.

"Beasts" in scripture are government systems. They are various forms of Church and State. In the U.S. where government prides itself in "separation of Church and State," it is in essence admitting that both Church and State are the two parts of its strategy to rule the masses.

State gives tax privileges to Churches as a reward for keeping the masses quiet and spiritually dead ... incapable of standing for or against anything.

What possible form of society can stop this general trend? None... except ONE: that one given by Yahweh to Israel, and that Christ gave the apostles. It is the Ecclesia System. All other forms of government are built upon the premise that man as god.

The Ecclesia System is the system God gave to man for keeping to keep man from ruling over man ... to keep society healthy and free. It is the ONLY system that can do this. It was the system given to Adam, which he subsequently rejected (Gen. 3). It was the system given to Abraham, and to Jacob (Gen. 12). It was the system given to Moses (Exodus 20-24). It was the system Israel rejected in Samuel's day when the people demanded a human king like the other nations (I Sam. 8). It seems that our forefathers repeatedly have rejected God's Reign and have opted for the Beast's reign.

The pattern was repeated again after Christ exposed it. In the third century after Christ, Rome again asserted its system over Christendom via the Roman emperor Constantine. This arrangement of Church & State continues today in America.

The Ecclesia System is the only real option that doesn't submit to the Beast System in its varied forms. The Ecclesia System is built upon the principle of FAMILY. It doesn't just allow families to exist (like the present Republic), but actually IS a family – a large family; a tribe, or clan.

Are there examples of this form of government extant today? Yes. Some Muslim societies – much to their credit and in spite of western rhetoric – have still not conformed to the centralized government format of "Western Civilization" (modern Babylon). In spite of their erroneous religion, their patriarchal societies are living examples of tribal-based cultures.

In recent history there is the example of the old Scottish clans (tribes) who fought so long and hard to try to extract themselves from British tyranny and centralization. The Scots, in spite of valiant spirits (from whom Americans could learn much) were eventually worn down and beaten.

The Ecclesia System is the system of COMMUNITY. It works like a family. It is tribal and patriarchal. It is not centralized. Now is the time to get started rethinking it all, and get headed back the right way.

The U.S. Constitution was America's official death warrant. It was a replay of the error of Samuel's generation (1 Sam. 8). All who believe in that The Constitution are, in essence, condoning the death of America.

Think about it. Americans have allowed a heathen concept of government to replace the simple truths of God. No wonder America is no longer being blessed. No wonder God is not answering the people's cries for help. Their prayers will go unanswered as long as they love their man-made Constitutional Government and as long as men are America's gods.

Open your eyes, America! Awake from the dead, come out of the churches and the voting booths, and receive the light of Christ.

A LESSON IN FUTILITY

by Robert Kleuser

"Let them alone; they are blind guides. And if a blind man leads a blind man, both will fall into a pit."

Matthew 15:14

Anyone who thinks he is going to convert a preacher to a new (or different) idea or view of Scripture is usually only kidding himself and wasting time. Church denominations have worked long and hard to build high and mighty psychological (as well as physical) walls to insulate and protect preachers and their doctrines from challenge or question. There is built up in every denomination, and almost every small group, a mental pedestal upon which the pastor, priest or leader is securely enthroned. The consequence of this continuing phenomenon is that the man upon the pedestal is now seen by every loyal follower, as well as by himself, as a quasi-pope under divine guidance. Anyone in that group who dares to differ with him is obviously misled, bullheaded, and/or "not a Christian in the truest and highest sense of the word." The priests have always built priestcraft hierarchies and the people have allowed it and even encouraged it

"Give us a king to judge us, like the other nations"

1 Samuel 8:6)

They seem to be happy with the arrangement, as they have been all these centuries. But, long ago ...

"... an appalling and horrible thing has happened in the land: the prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests rule at their direction; and my people love to have it so."

Jeremiah 5:30-31

Churchgoers are relieved of the responsibility of thinking and making conscious decisions, and are reduced to memorizing church dogma and edicts, then parroting those fables (see Titus 1:14). The Priests, regardless of what imaginative titles they take, are only too happy to tell the people what to think, what to believe, what to say, and what to do – all the while playing to rich sources of money.

A true preacher/teacher should encourage individual thought and action, not demand blind and total acceptance of whatever he says. But in the church world a thinker is tossed out or forced out by accusations, ridicule or slander. In the long run, however, this is without doubt the best thing for the thinker anyway since it gets him out of that confusing and hypocritical influence.

The meaning of the lesson is this: unless you like wasting your time, or are in a situation where you need to monitor and then expose the nonsense, trying to have a personal give-and-take exchange with a priest (again, regardless of the title taken – minister, pastor, reverend, priest, etc.) is almost certainly going to be of no value. We will not, no matter how clever or informed we are, be able to raise them from their spiritually dead condition. Only our Heavenly Father can do that. This is not to say that there is nothing to learn by listening to false prophets. Preachers sometimes have an isolated good thought or idea, even though their national and world view is a mixture of Jewish propaganda and Eastern Cult religion. But, it is generally a waste of your time to engage in sincere give-and-take discussion with a popish priest, one of his minion serfs, or anyone who has been jellified by one of the above. Generally, only a discussion with real truth seekers has the potential to be beneficial and edifying.

By the way, examine yourself. Is your mind open to learning concepts that might go against church hierarchy's dictates and dogma? Not that a person is obligated or wise to accept every "new" idea to come down the road. We do, however, need to remember that despite the purveyors of priestcraft, we are permitted and encouraged by our Father in heaven to think about His Word, EVEN IF THE PREACHERS WON'T!

"YOU DON'T HAVE TO UNDERSTAND IT, YOU DUMMIES! IT DOESN'T HAVE TO MAKE ANY SENSE TO YOUR PUNY RATIONALISTIC MINDS! DON'T QUESTION IT, YOU IDIOTS! JUST BELIEVE WHATEVER I TELL YOU!"
