

"... they receive not the love of the truth, that they might be saved. And for this cause God will be sending them strong delusion, so they believe the lie." (2 Thess. 2:10-11)

U.S. ECONOMY DOOMED

SIGNS ABOUND

Headlines on CNN this morning tell us: "U.S. Economy Heading Straight For The Cliff." Also a New York Times headline reads: "I.M.F. Warns of 'Sizable Risk' of Deflation in Euro Zone." Meanwhile, economists worry about inflation that will make our money lose value.

I can't help but chuckle at the nonsense in the news. On any typical day one headline assures us that the economy is recovering, while another headline warns that we are heading for economic disaster. I think, as a whole, the editors of these media outlets want to keep the public confused so they publish contradictory information. We end up with "cognitive dissonance" (confusion caused by belief in conflicting ideas, beliefs or values).

In time, people who live with cognitive dissonance adjust to the feeling of unresolved issues. They learn to think of their confusion as "normal." Confusion becomes a way of life. They can even get irritated at anyone who claims that truth can be a known value. Anyone who doesn't accede to a state of intellectual uncertainty is probably labeled "a radical."

It is hard enough, even without propaganda mills confusing us, to figure out where the elite intend to take the U.S. economy. But wading through their swamp of lies and deceit make it that much more difficult. The task of discerning what is happening to our economy, and why it is happening, is a mystery to most Americans.

Suffice it to say that the average American is confused about economics ... not because economic principles are so difficult, but because certain people keep inventing bogus terms and tactics to confuse us. If we adopt their bogus terms we find ourselves in a state of cognitive dissonance. Our minds shift into neutral.

Confusion plagues America. This predicament is the result of idolatry (accepting and admiring the Beast System). TV reporters (the Beast System's hirelings) are accepted and trusted ... when, in fact, they don't report real news. They parrot sound bites from script handed to them by their editors ... and the editors are owned by the CEO's, who are owned by the bankers and corporations who profit from keeping Americans confused. They keep Americans too ignorant to discern what is really happening.

Ignorant and confused people are helpless. They lose the ability to detect thieves even as they are being robbed by them. Idolatrous and ignorant Americans wave the flag, support the troops, pay taxes, vote, trust in banks, and wither like grapes on a dead vine. As they go about their daily routines they have lost their ability to analyze and make good decisions.

FIRST THINGS FIRST

Americans are in this mess because sometime in the past they quit trusting God's wisdom and started seeking man's wisdom (so-called). When they started seeking man's wisdom they immediately made themselves susceptible to the Beast System. The result is that we now suffer under the rule of bankers and politicians ... a system that benefits the elite and enslaves the common people.

Thus, to undo the damage that's been done, Americans first need to stop admiring the Beast System. There is nothing good there for us. To appreciate God's system we must first understand that the Beast System is not for us.

Then, once we are convinced that there is nothing to gain by studying and following the Beast System, we can begin to devote our minds and hearts to understanding the benefits and blessings of God's system.

ONE BASIC COMMANDMENT

The Eighth Commandment: "You shall not steal," is simple and clear. If obeyed, this one law has the ability to cure most of our economic ills. I can't say it is the most important of the commandments (they are all important), but it may be the most violated of all the commandments.

So we can conclude that most of our problems stem from America's lack of attention to the most simple and clear laws that God gave us.

Thievery – especially the legalized kind – is the accepted way of life in Babylonian society. As I look around at American society I observe that people cannot trust each other. That's because most Americans lie to each other and steal from each other. They may not call it stealing. Many may not even realize they are stealing ... but they are.

The Beast System has substituted its own terms for these sins to make them sound as if they aren't sins.

"Stealing" is a sin even if its called by another name ... like "interest," "tax," "fees," "profit margin," "speculation," etc..

God's law provides for "gain" (honest production). But America's mantra of "profit at any cost" can be abusive.

"Lying," too, is a sin ... even if we call it "advertisement," "news," "politics," "public relations," "diplomacy," or "preaching" (where the preacher convinces his listeners that he actually knows what he's talking about when in fact he is only parroting something he heard). Ministers who do honest, original research and don't just repeat someone else's lies soon find themselves leaving the church world.

Deception and lying are not only tolerated in American society, they are actually encouraged starting early in childhood. Children learn early that lying is an American tradition. Deception is viewed as a tool to get what you want. Parents, churches and schools start acclimating children right away to a life of deception ... Santa, the Tooth Fairy, government, police, war, competition ... lies about nearly everything including the nature of God. Children are taught that God is an angry tyrant instead of a loving Father ... and that his laws are oppressive instead of life-giving. At the same time they are told that God is good. So kids learn to live with cognitive dissonance ... and their world becomes a culture that makes no sense to them.

Americans today have grown accustomed to living with lies. They expect it. Lying and stealing no longer offends them. They are acclimated to it. Like profanity and ill manners it is considered "normal."

Thievery and deception have become the norm. The more talented liars often become preachers, politicians or lawyers. The more talented thieves often become bankers, tax collectors or stock brokers. The rest (the majority) who lack the talent to be accomplished liars or thieves become voters and taxpayers ... and sadly, they admire their masters and their Beast System. The institutions of the Beast System are given good-sounding names so we can feel good about being robbed and ravaged by these good-sounding institutions.

This is not hyperbole. It is FACT. This is a big part of the reason the common man in America cannot grasp the basics of economics or why he cannot seem to get ahead. He can't see that he is living in a matrix of lies ... and he has no vision of what life might be outside that matrix. Furthermore, he can be heard to say that he is proud of his way of life ... a way of life that, from a distance, can be seen for what it is: a society where a few at the top own, control, and use everything and everyone else.

SOME BASICS

Americans are generally proud of their government. They trust the establishment ... and that is a big mistake. Trusting the establishment government is just wrong in so many ways. Even the "Founding Fathers" wrote about this.

"Government is not reason; it is not eloquent; it is force. Like fire, it is a dangerous servant and a fearful master."

—George Washington

"The issue today is the same as it has been throughout all history, whether man shall be allowed to govern himself or be ruled by a small elite."

—Thomas Jefferson

"It is the responsibility of the patriot to protect his country from its government. "

—Thomas Paine

America's authors and poets warned us.

"No man's life, liberty, or property are safe while the legislature is in session. "

—Mark Twain

It is a particular curiosity of human nature when even those men who understood the problem just kept going right into the jaws of hell. The Beast System is, apparently, the unavoidable end of men who choose to worship man.

Following this thinking, Americans tend to envy and trust the money powers (bankers) because they appear to be successful (one of man's temptations):

8. Again, the devil took him up into an exceeding high mountain, and showed him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them;
9. And said to him, All these things will I give you, if you will fall down and worship me.

Mtt. 4:8-9

Jesus didn't trust the devil(s) who tried to tempt Him. And for Americans to trust usury bankers is as wrong as if Jesus had trusted his tempters. But Americans do trust bankers. That is why most never take the time to learn how banks work. They won't ask the critical questions because they don't want to know the truth.

So I will ask some of the critical questions Americans should be asking, but aren't ... and I will answer them.

Question: Why do we need banks?

Answer: Banks would be OK if they were merely vaults for storing valuables, or clearing houses to facilitate interstate commerce. That is how most people think of them ... but that is a mistaken perception. Banks are much, much more. Their principle purpose is to control the national economy and to enslave the common man. In America each bank is a branch of the central bank: The Federal Reserve Bank. Through its member banks the FED decides and controls whether the economy will be boom or bust. If the economy is good it is because the FED wants it good. If the economy is bad it is because the FED wants it bad. The FED controls the economy. Nothing is by accident.

Question: What is American currency?

Answer: In America, money is not what it seems. One might think that a dollar bill (Fed Note) represents a positive value. In a normal world he would be right. But in the world of the Federal Reserve banking things are not normal!

A US Fed Note (called "a dollar") is a loan that someone borrowed from a bank. It is a debt. That is why it is called "a note." Trading notes is like trading loan agreements. When we spend Fed Notes we are spending loan agreements (debts) that someone has promised to pay a bank. If the "bills" weren't "debts" they would be called something other than "notes."

To spend a debt note is unnatural. It is illogical. It is difficult for a normal man to conceive of this. Debt notes are being circulated as money. The note may represent someone else's debt, but it is debt nonetheless. These debts are backed by NOTHING other than public confidence in the FED. Banks loan out un-backed debt notes that are created at the moment the loan is accepted. They call it "monetization" (turning debt into money). And then the public passes these debt notes around as if they have value.

When someone trades stocks he is trading debts. This is behind the great debacle that is playing out on Wall Street ... where traders (bankers) are trading trillions of dollars in "derivatives" and "hedge funds." It is all debt ... but people trade them as if they had real value.

The banking system is totally bogus and unnatural ... which is why almost no one understands it. Debt is treated as an asset.

It works like this. The Federal Reserve creates debt notes with the stroke of a pen or by typing an amount on a computer. Those debt notes are then loaned to a commercial bank at a low rate of interest. Then the banks turn around and lend those debt notes out to the public at a higher rate of interest. Plus, banks are allowed to lend out more debt notes than they borrowed from the FED (about nine times as much). This is called "fractional reserve banking." Money as we know it today is debt, and it is created out of thin air.

Debt is not wealth. It is a liability. It is an IOU that someone is holding. Whoever holds that IOU is also charging usury on it. And since the only way Americans are allowed to have "money" is by borrowing it from banks, the overall debt just keeps growing and growing. It never goes away ... for if it were possible to pay all the debt (which it isn't possible) that would remove all money out of circulation and completely kill the economy.

Question: How do banks create booms and busts?

Answer: Booms and busts are determined by the amount of currency the banks allow in circulation (by "in circulation" I mean accessible to American business. In other words, it is money that is available and not stowed in some fat cat's secret account in an offshore bank).

Currency is to the economy as blood is to the human body. A sufficient amount of blood is needed to enable the body to function. Likewise, a sufficient amount of currency in circulation is needed to enable the economy to function. As long as enough currency is available to accommodate commerce, businesses remain open, people continue to have jobs, and people continue to work, produce and consume.

However, when the supply of currency shrinks, commerce slows, businesses close their doors, jobs are lost and people cannot produce or consume. The economy turns anemic ... just as when a body lacks blood supply.

Banks have total control over the amount of currency allowed into circulation. That means they have total control over the economy. They can (and do) slow down the economy by restricting the amount of money. Or they can (and do) speed up the economy by increasing the money supply. However, when the banks inject money into circulation a disproportionate amount of it goes to a few big shots (cronies) at the top of the food chain, and very little of it gets into the hands of small business owners (i.e., the middle class). The elite top 1% of Americans end up with 90% of the money, and us regular folks continue struggling to make ends meet.

Then, when the banks decide to reduce the supply of currency in circulation, us regular folks are the ones who suffer ... because we are always only a few days away from being broke. But the super rich always have enough to see them through hard times without suffering one little bit.

So much for the so-called "trickle down theory."

LICENSE TO STEAL

So, why would anyone invent and perpetrate such a convoluted and troublesome banking system? Well, it is necessary to keep people confused so they don't realize that banking is thievery.

The US banking system is a great deal ... for a few elite. But it is perpetual slavery for the masses. Banks literally have a license to steal. They create money out of nothing, on the spur of the moment, and then lend it to us ... and then we pay them back with our labors and with the harvests we reap from the earth. And it all ends up in the hands of the bankers. It's quite an ingenious scheme.

Bankers contribute NOTHING to mankind. And yet bankers are the richest, most powerful men on Earth. They loan us little pieces of paper that permit us to work and conduct business. From a distance one might observe that Americans are simple minded. Fed Notes are nothing but permits to do business. The little paper permits cost the bankers NOTHING, but they cost us EVERYTHING.

Not a bad setup if you are a banker. But how do regular folks get talked into accepting such a scam? Americans have this illusion that they are fortunate, free and intelligent. Truth is, they are incredibly ignorant. Only idiots would agree to let bankers print money for free and then loan it to us at face value. When regular people try to do that it is called "counterfeiting." Common people go to jail for counterfeiting. But bankers have a license to counterfeit.

Do you ever wonder why God is not blessing America?

Why is America failing? Could one of the reasons be that American society is based upon the breaking of God's Eighth Commandment? Not only have Americans made a profession of breaking God's commandment, but they make that profession (banking) the most prestigious in the land ... and they make the thieves in that profession the richest and most powerful people in the country. What do ya think? If you were God would you bless a country that does this?

WHERE DOES IT ALL END?

God's laws are instructions on how to build a sustainable and healthy society. A nation that would follow God's laws could be blessed and never fall prey to serpent-type systems (like the Rothschild banking system). God's ways are defined for us in Scripture. They are the Creator's instructions for maintaining his creation.

When a nation or a society break God's laws there are consequences.

16. Yahweh is known by the judgment which he executes: the wicked is snared in the work of his own hands.
17. The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God.
18. For the needy shall not always be forgotten: the hope of the poor shall not perish for ever.

Ps. 9:16-18

When a people forget God they begin to destroy themselves. But God's judgment does not come immediately. It takes a while.

When the wicked rule they institute systems that favor them. Thieves and liars (psychopaths) rise to the top of those systems. They thrive at the top ... for a while. Like the symbolic harlot in Revelation 18, the professional thieves and murders (bankers, lawyers and politicians) ride high and appear to be living the good life.

7. How much she has glorified herself, ...: for she says in her heart, I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow.
8. Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly burned with fire: for strong is the Lord God who judges her.

Rev. 18:7-8

The fate of the symbolic harlot who holds the reins of the Beast System is determined by God. Thus is the fate of the wicked who temporarily ride high and make the mistake of thinking they will always be on top ruling over their weakened victims.

The end of the wicked is preordained. Their methods are unsustainable. Like locusts, jackals, or uncontrolled fire they consume and destroy everything they touch. They eat themselves out of house and home. They are self-indulgent and lawless. They are never satisfied, and never acquire enough wealth or power. Like a wildfire they always want more. The more they get, the more they want.

It is that greed that eventually destroys them ... just as God's judgment declares.

A land cannot withstand or sustain itself when these wicked locusts and jackals are running things. They rape the land, and in time they destroy it. This is the nature of the Beast System. It has been eating away at America for a long time.

Since the 1600's, America has changed from a land with promise and freedom to a land of occupation and corruption. Now she is a burned-out, worn-out harlot ... used up and despised by her many "lovers" – "the Merchants Of The Earth" (Rev. 18:3, 11).

America is not what she used to be. She chose evil lovers (government systems) instead of Jesus (the good husband - bridegroom). Her evil lovers (the bankers and politicians) have had their way with her, and now she is damaged merchandise. She has lost her allure, and now the merchants of the earth (Rev. 18:3) are turning their attentions toward more attractive and promising women (nations) ... toward the east (Asia).

The U.S. is dying the natural death of old harlots. The process is already underway. Some of us will live to see the fulfillment of this prophecy (Rev. 18:11).

This is why the U.S. economy is doomed. Not that the damage is beyond repair. It could be fixed. But it isn't worth the trouble for the bankers. It isn't cost effective. It is easier and more profitable for them to move on to greener pastures. America is becoming unattractive, and her lovers would rather court the younger, more vibrant economies in Asia.

You'll hear lots of complaining about "outsourcing" and the big corporations (like General Motors) taking residence in China. But you won't hear much about the actual reasons it is taking place.

America's economy is doomed because her Beast System husband is walking out on her.

THE GOOD NEWS

The Beast doesn't know it yet, but it is in its final days. Its move eastward will be short lived.

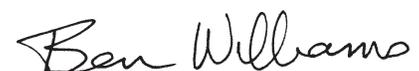

But what about America? What will happen to her?

Well, her economy is not her. It is only a sickness she has contracted. As the Beast System moves east, to most Americans this will seem a horrible thing. But in reality it is a good thing. When the current economy fails, America (the land and people) will survive and eventually heal.

I have been looking forward to economic collapse for a long time. I know it will seem hurtful to many people, but in the long run it will be a blessing. It will bring life without the Beast breathing its poison into our businesses, our thoughts, our family life.

Babylon's end may not be too far off. May our God give us eyes that we may see, understand and take courage.

Stay strong and be thankful,
